Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions.

Tet, or Vietnamese Lunar New Year, is the most important festival in Vietnam, marking the arrival of spring and a fresh start. It is a time for family reunions, ancestor worship, and various traditions meant to bring good fortune. Before Tet, families clean their homes, decorate with peach or apricot blossoms, and prepare special foods. Markets become busy as people buy ingredients, new clothes, and gifts, creating a joyful atmosphere across the country.

Traditional foods play a key role in Tet celebrations, with banh chung (square sticky rice cake) and banh day (round sticky rice cake) symbolizing the Earth and sky. These foods are not only enjoyed during the holiday but also offered to ancestors as a sign of respect. Families gather to cook these cakes together, which strengthens bonds and preserves traditions. While some regions celebrate with pickled onions and boiled chicken, others add various sweets to enrich the festivities with their unique culinary heritage.

Many customs during Tet are believed to bring good luck for the new year. The first visitor to a home is thought to influence the family's fortune, so people carefully choose someone with a positive spirit. Giving red envelopes filled with money to children and elders is another tradition symbolizing prosperity. Colorful lion dances, fireworks, and festive gatherings create an energetic and hopeful start to the year.

More than just a holiday, Tet reflects Vietnam's cultural identity and deep-rooted traditions. It strengthens family and community ties while preserving customs passed down through generations. As modernity influences daily life, Tet remains a steadfast reminder of the importance of heritage, unity, and the enduring spirit of the Vietnamese people.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions.

[I] In February 2025, the Houston Independent School District (HISD) joined a growing number of school districts in a lawsuit against major social media companies, including Meta, Snap, and ByteDance.

[II] The lawsuit, filed in the U.S. District Court in California, alleges that these platforms are intentionally designed to maximize screen time and foster addictive behaviors among youth. [III] HISD, along with Cypress-Fairbanks ISD and Conroe ISD, has retained legal representation on a contingency basis, meaning the law firms involved will only be compensated if the case is won or settled favorably. [IV]

This legal action reflects a broader concern about the impact of social media addiction on young people's mental health. Recent observations by addiction specialists have highlighted that those addicted to technology and social media exhibit withdrawal symptoms similar to those experienced by substance abusers. For instance, Lee Fernandes, an addiction specialist at UKAT, has reported cases where individuals spend excessive amounts of time on platforms like YouTube - up to 15 to 17 hours daily - and experience symptoms such as shaking, sweating, and insomnia when attempting to reduce usage. These findings underscore the severity of social media addiction and its profound effects on individuals' well-being.

In response to these growing concerns, various initiatives have been proposed to mitigate the negative impacts of excessive social media use. One such initiative is "Phone-Free February," which encourages individuals to reduce screen time to improve mental health, sleep quality, and productivity. Research indicates that high social media usage is linked to increased feelings of depression and self-comparison. Experts suggest that gradual steps, such as replacing screen time with activities like reading or engaging in hobbies, establishing screen-free zones, and utilizing app blockers, can help individuals manage their social media consumption more effectively.

Legislative measures are also being considered to address this issue. In Connecticut, a bipartisan group of lawmakers has expressed support for legislation aimed at restricting cellphone usage among children and teenagers, particularly concerning social media access. The proposed law, advocated by Attorney General William Tong, seeks to protect minors from technology addiction by implementing measures such as prohibiting social media use between midnight and 6 a.m. Also, this law requires companies to implement more robust age verification processes to ensure minors are adequately protected. These efforts aim to curb the rising rates of anxiety, depression, and other mental health issues associated with excessive social media use among the youth.

- A. Social media addiction can cause withdrawal symptoms similar to those of substance abuse.
 B. Addiction specialists warn that excessive social media use can negatively affect sleep patterns.
 C. Spending too much time on social media can lead to physical and psychological health issues.
 D. Studies show that YouTube is the most addictive social media platform for young people.

Question 35: The word proposed in paragraph 3 is OPPOSITE in meaning to _____.

- A. approved B. postponed C. dismissed D. introduced

Question 36: In paragraph 3, which of the following is NOT mentioned as a strategy to manage social media consumption?

- A. setting up screen-free areas B. seeking professional counseling
 C. utilizing app blockers D. replacing screen time with hobbies

Question 37: Which of the following best paraphrases the underlined sentence in paragraph 4?

- A. Companies are encouraged to adopt stricter rules to prevent minors from using social media.
 B. To protect users from scams, the law suggests that businesses create better security measures.
 C. Minors must provide official identification before using social media platforms under this law.
 D. The law requires companies to strengthen their age verification systems for better child protection.

Question 38: Which of the following is TRUE according to the passage?

- A. “Phone-Free February” requires individuals to completely avoid social media for a month.
 B. Addiction specialists believe social media addiction has few serious withdrawal symptoms.
 C. The lawsuit claims social media platforms are deliberately meant to promote excessive usage.
 D. HISD is the only school district in the US involved in the lawsuit against social media companies.

Question 39: Which of the following can be inferred from the passage?

- A. The legislation aims to restrict children and teenagers from using their cellphones.
 B. Connecticut lawmakers recognize a link between social media use and mental health issues.
 C. The proposed law suggests that all social media use is harmful to minors at any time of the day.
 D. Families are required to verify users’ ages strictly before allowing access to social media.

Question 40: Which of the following best summarizes the passage?

- A. Lawsuits filed by school districts against social media giants reflect a broader societal concern about the addictive nature of these platforms and their far-reaching impact.
 B. Fueled by growing concerns over social media addiction, various stakeholders are taking legal, legislative, and individual action to mitigate its negative effects on youth.
 C. While legal actions against social media companies highlight the dangers of excessive screen time, initiatives like “Phone-Free February” emphasize the importance of individual responsibility.
 D. Legislative efforts, such as the proposed law in Connecticut, seek to restrict minors’ access to social media and enforce stricter age verification measures to protect their mental health.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions.

In July 2023, Meta launched Threads, a social media platform meant to compete with Twitter by allowing real-time conversations. The app quickly became popular, reaching over 100 million users within a week. However, as more people started using Threads, some behaviors from other social media platforms also appeared, making people question the authenticity of the content being shared. Some users began posting in a way that seemed overly dramatic or exaggerated, making their opinions sound more important than they actually were.

One common trend on Threads is “rage bait” posts, which are written in a way that makes people angry or emotional, encouraging them to leave comments. Journalist Katie Notopoulos tested this by posting things designed to make people react strongly, and she found that these posts got more attention because the platform's algorithm seemed to promote content with a lot of engagement. While this strategy helps posts go viral, it also raises concerns about whether people are sharing genuine thoughts or just trying to get noticed.

Threads has also become a place for spreading rumors and conspiracy theories. After the 2024 U.S. presidential election, some users started posting claims about election fraud. This created a lot of arguments and showed how difficult it is for social media platforms to control false information. Many people worry that these kinds of posts will make it harder to find accurate news and honest discussions.

The situation on Threads shows how hard it is to manage online communities. While the platform gives people a space to express their ideas, the rise of exaggerated posts and false information makes it difficult to know what is real. Unless Threads finds ways to encourage meaningful conversations, misleading or overly dramatic content will likely take over.

Question 23: The word exaggerated in paragraph 1 is OPPOSITE in meaning to _____.

- A. underscored B. understood C. underwritten D. understated

Question 24: According to the passage, all of the following are true about “rage bait” posts EXCEPT _____.

- A. They were tested by a journalist to study user reactions.
- B. They are always based on false or misleading information.
- C. They are created to provoke strong emotional reactions from users.
- D. They often receive more engagement due to the platform's algorithm.

Question 25: The word genuine in paragraph 2 could be best replaced by _____.

- A. relevant B. suitable C. sincere D. respectful

Question 26: Which of the following best paraphrases the underlined sentence in paragraph 3?

- A. Although social media companies have taken steps to reduce false information, misinformation remains a serious issue.
 B. The situation led to many debates and highlighted the challenge social media platforms face in managing misinformation.
 C. People engaged in heated discussions because social media companies could no longer prevent the spread of false information.
 D. The increase in online arguments demonstrated that controlling misinformation is the biggest issue for social media platforms.

Question 27: The word their in paragraph 4 refers to _____.

- A. Threads B. people C. discussions D. communities

Question 28: Which of the following is TRUE according to the passage?

- A. Katie discovered that the Threads algorithm favors posts with high engagement.
 B. Threads has eliminated exaggerated posts to encourage more meaningful discussions.
 C. After the 2024 U.S. presidential election, Threads successfully controlled false information.
 D. Threads was launched by Meta to replace Twitter as the leading social media platform.

Question 29: In which paragraph does the writer present a conditional relationship?

- A. Paragraph 1 B. Paragraph 2 C. Paragraph 3 D. Paragraph 4

Question 30: In which paragraph does the writer mention the impact of the Threads algorithm on the visibility of posts?

- A. Paragraph 1 B. Paragraph 2 C. Paragraph 3 D. Paragraph 4

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions.

[I] In February 2025, a significant proposal was introduced in Victoria, Australia, aiming to support volunteer wildlife carers by adding a small fee to vehicle registration costs. [II] The plan suggests that motorists pay an extra $2 on their car registration, with the funds directed towards a grant program for those who rescue and care for injured and orphaned animals. [III] With over 5.39 million registered vehicles in Victoria as of 2023, this levy could potentially generate more than $10 million annually to aid wildlife carers. [IV]

Supporters of the proposal, including Animal Justice MP Georgie Purcell, emphasize the crucial role that volunteer wildlife carers play in the community. These individuals often invest significant personal time and resources into rescuing and rehabilitating animals, with existing grants capped at $3,000 - an amount many find insufficient for ongoing expenses like food and medical supplies. The additional funds from the proposed levy would provide a more consistent and secure financial foundation, enabling carers to continue their essential work without bearing the full financial burden themselves.

However, the proposal has sparked debate among the public. Some motorists express concern about the introduction of another charge to their registration fees, questioning why they should bear responsibility for wildlife care funding. Gibbard acknowledges this perspective but urges the community to recognize the invaluable service these volunteers provide. She highlights that without adequate support, many carers may be unable to continue their efforts, potentially leaving numerous animals without the necessary care and rehabilitation.

For the proposal to advance to parliamentary debate, it requires at least 10,000 signatures.

Advocates are actively campaigning to gather support, believing that the modest fee is a small price to pay for the welfare of the region's wildlife. They argue that a collective contribution from motorists can lead to substantial positive outcomes for animal rescue operations, ensuring that volunteers are not left to shoulder the financial strain alone.

(Adapted from heraldsun.com.au)

Question 31: Where in paragraph 1 does the following sentence best fit?

This initiative emerged after Rhonda Gibbard witnessed a wildlife rescue near her home and recognized the financial challenges faced by these dedicated volunteers.

- A. [I] B. [II] C. [III] D. [IV]

Question 32: In paragraph 1, which of the following is NOT mentioned about the proposal?

- A. It aims to help volunteer wildlife carers.
B. The fee would be added to vehicle registration costs.
C. It would cover medical costs for injured animals.
D. The levy could raise over $10 million per year.

Question 33: The word insufficient in paragraph 2 is OPPOSITE in meaning to _____.

- A. moderate B. substantial C. astonishing D. superior

Question 34: The word their in paragraph 2 refers to _____.

- A. carers B. funds C. expenses D. supporters

Question 35: Which of the following best paraphrases the underlined sentence in paragraph 3?

- A. Most people agree that funding wildlife carers should be a shared responsibility among citizens.
B. The proposal faces opposition from some motorists, while supporters stress the need for funding.
C. Volunteer wildlife carers may struggle to continue their work without proper financial support.
D. Many motorists believe the government should cover wildlife care costs instead of adding fees.

Question 36: The phrase for the welfare of in paragraph 4 could be best replaced by _____.

- A. to increase the number of B. to improve the lives of
C. to conclude the harm to D. to control the population of

Question 37: Which of the following best summarizes paragraph 4?

- A. The proposal has gained overwhelming public backing and will soon be debated.
B. Lawmakers have already approved the proposal, but public support is still growing.
C. The proposal needs 10,000 signatures before it can be discussed in parliament.
D. Supporters are unsure if they can collect 10,000 signatures to move the proposal forward.

Question 38: Which of the following is TRUE according to the passage?

- A. The proposed levy would generate more or less $10,000 per year for each wildlife carer.
B. The current grant system has provided sufficient funding for every wildlife carers' expense.
C. Some motorists oppose the proposal as they believe wildlife care is not their responsibility.
D. The proposal has already been approved and will soon be implemented in the near future.

Question 39: Which of the following can be inferred from the passage?

- A. Without enough signatures, the proposal will not be considered for parliamentary debate.
B. Several tourists believe that wildlife protection should be funded by private donations.
C. Wildlife carers currently receive financial support that completely covers their expenses.
D. The campaign to gather support for the proposal has already reached its goal in the end.

Question 40: Which of the following best summarizes the passage?

- A. Volunteer wildlife carers in Victoria receive ample financial support, and a recent proposal seeks to eliminate the vehicle registration fee for them.
B. A proposal in Victoria would add a small fee to vehicle registration to help fund wildlife carers, but many motorists are concerned about the additional costs.
C. The introduction of a vehicle registration fee in Victoria aims to generate funding for wildlife carers, which may lead to significant changes in animal rescue operations.
D. Volunteer wildlife carers in Victoria face financial challenges, prompting a proposal to add a small registration fee to generate over $10 million annually to support their efforts.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions.

In February 2025, former U.S. President Donald Trump announced a new rule to stop the use of paper straws in government buildings and return to plastic straws. This decision canceled a previous policy that tried to minimize single-use plastics, including straws, to help protect the environment. Trump argued that paper straws are weak, break easily, and do not work well with hot drinks. He also questioned whether plastic straws really harm the environment as much as people say.

The new rule tells all government offices to stop buying paper straws and replace them with plastic ones. It also requires officials to create a national plan to remove paper straws from public spaces. Supporters of this change believe paper straws are very expensive, less useful, and sometimes still come wrapped in plastic, making them less environmentally friendly. In contrast, some businesses that produce plastic products have welcomed the decision, arguing that it supports American manufacturing.

However, many environmental groups strongly disagree with this decision. They say plastic straws and other plastic waste pollute the ocean and harm marine animals. They also argue that the switch back to plastic straws ignores efforts to reduce waste and find better alternatives. This issue has started a bigger debate about how to balance convenience, business interests, and protecting the environment.

Trump's decision is part of a larger trend of changing environmental rules. It raises questions about whether protecting businesses or protecting nature should be a bigger priority. The debate over plastic and paper straws is just one small part of a larger conversation about how to take care of the planet.

Question 25: The word them in paragraph 2 refers to _____.

- A. officials
- B. straws
- C. drinks
- D. offices

Question 26: The word expensive in paragraph 2 could be best replaced by _____.

- A. discouraging
- B. prohibitive
- C. irrelevant
- D. affordable

Question 27: Which of the following best paraphrases the underlined sentence in paragraph 3?

- A. Many people believe that reducing plastic straw use will eliminate harm to marine creatures.
- B. The main cause of ocean pollution is plastic straws, which may have endangered marine animals.
- C. Plastic waste, including straws, is blamed for ocean pollution and poses a threat to marine life.
- D. Marine animals are at risk because plastic waste is necessary for human beings despite its impact.

Question 28: Which of the following is TRUE according to the passage?

- A. The previous policy banned all single-use plastics, not just straws.
- B. Businesses making plastic products have strictly opposed Trump's decision.
- C. Trump's new rule requires a national plan to discard paper straws from public places.

D. The ongoing debate over plastic straws is more pressing than other environmental issues.

Question 29: In which paragraph does the writer present a contrastive relationship?

- A. Paragraph 1 B. Paragraph 2 C. Paragraph 3 D. Paragraph 4

Question 30: In which paragraph does the writer NOT demonstrate a complementary relationship?

- A. Paragraph 1 B. Paragraph 2 C. Paragraph 3 D. Paragraph 4

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions.

[I] In recent years, brain drain has become a growing concern for many countries, especially those struggling to retain highly skilled workers and young professionals. [II] This phenomenon occurs when educated and talented individuals leave their home regions in search of better career opportunities, higher salaries, and improved living conditions elsewhere. [III] Governments and organizations around the world are now looking for ways to address this issue. [IV]

One recent example is Portugal, where the government introduced a new policy in November 2024 to tackle the brain drain problem. The country has seen a large number of young professionals leaving for better-paying jobs in other European nations, which has negatively impacted its economy. To counter this, Portugal announced a ten-year tax break plan that offers young workers a 100% income tax exemption in their first year of employment, followed by gradually reduced exemptions over the next nine years. This initiative aims to make staying in Portugal more financially attractive for young professionals and encourage them to contribute to the country's economic development instead of seeking work abroad.

Similarly, in the United States, the Midwest has been struggling with a persistent brain drain as many college graduates move to bigger cities in search of better job opportunities. A report from February 2024 showed that many Midwestern and Great Plains states lost more educated residents than they gained in 2022. The main reason behind this migration is the lack of well-paying jobs, as well as limited career growth in many industries. This trend has raised concerns among policymakers, who fear that the continued loss of talent could weaken local economies and make it even harder to attract businesses and investments to these regions.

To address this issue, some cities have started taking action. In St. Louis, Missouri, Washington University commissioned a study in late 2024 to explore strategies for keeping more graduates in the area. The report emphasized that competitive salaries, affordable housing, and strong social connections play a crucial role in encouraging young professionals to stay. By focusing on these key factors, the city hopes to build a more attractive environment for skilled workers and prevent further talent loss. Other regions facing similar problems are also considering adopting similar measures, recognizing that retaining talent requires more than just job opportunities - it also depends on the overall quality of life in a given area.

D. City officials believe that offering financial incentives will keep talented workers from leaving.

Question 38: Which of the following is TRUE according to the passage?

A. Portugal's tax policy aims to attract foreign professionals to its workforce.

B. Portugal introduced financial incentives to encourage young professionals to stay.

C. The loss of skilled workers has had little impact on the economies of affected regions.

D. The brain drain in the U.S. Midwest is mainly caused by a lack of educational opportunities.

Question 39: Which of the following can be inferred from the passage?

A. Competitive salaries are the most significant factors in retaining young professionals.

B. St. Louis has successfully implemented policies that have solved its brain drain problem.

C. Preventing talent loss requires job opportunities and improvements in living conditions.

D. Most cities facing the issue of brain drains have already found effective solutions.

Question 40: Which of the following best summarizes the passage?

A. To counteract the negative effects of brain drain, some governments have introduced financial incentives, such as tax breaks, to encourage skilled workers to stay.

B. Driven by concerns over economic decline, policymakers in various regions are analyzing brain drain and exploring measures to retain local talent.

C. Brain drain remains a significant challenge in many regions, prompting governments and institutions to implement various strategies to retain talent.

D. If cities and countries do not take a comprehensive approach to their brain drain problem, they will continue to struggle with the loss of skilled workers.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions.

Vietnam is undergoing rapid urbanization, with major infrastructure and development projects shaping the country's future. In November 2024, the National Assembly approved a high-speed railway connecting Hanoi and Ho Chi Minh City. This 1,541-kilometer (957-mile) railway will allow trains to travel at speeds of up to 350 kilometers per hour (217 miles per hour), reducing travel time between the two cities from 30 hours to just five. The project is expected to begin construction in 2027, with the first trains becoming operational by 2035. With 23 passenger stations and five freight stations along the route, the railway aims to enhance transportation, boost economic growth, and support Vietnam's ongoing urbanization.

Another major project reflecting Vietnam's rapid urbanization is the Trump Organization's partnership with Vietnamese real estate developer Kinh Bac City. In October 2024, they announced a $1.5 billion investment in Hung Yen province, near Hanoi, to develop a luxury complex. The project will include two 54-hole golf courses, high-end hotels, resorts, and a modern residential area. This collaboration is expected to draw in both local and international visitors.

Along with infrastructure expansion, urbanization in Vietnam presents both opportunities and challenges. New projects create more jobs, improve transportation, and contribute to economic growth, making cities more modern and efficient. However, rapid development also brings issues such as increased pollution, overcrowding, and rising living costs, which can affect the quality of life for many residents.

These recent developments demonstrate Vietnam's commitment to modernization and economic progress. With investments in transportation, real estate, and urban planning, the country is shaping its cities to be more connected and livable. In the same way, countries like South Korea are investing heavily in smart city initiatives and advanced infrastructure, enhancing urban life and promoting their economic growth through innovation and sustainability.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions.

[I] In February 2025, Elon Musk's artificial intelligence company, xAI, unveiled its latest AI model, Grok 3, which Musk claims surpasses competitors like OpenAI's GPT-4 and DeepSeek's V3 in areas such as mathematics, science, and computer programming. [II] This advanced model is now accessible to premium subscribers on X, the social media platform formerly known as Twitter. [III] Additionally, xAI introduced a new feature called "Deep Search," designed to provide detailed explanations for its search responses, enhancing user understanding and interaction with the AI system. [IV]

While these claims position Grok 3 as a formidable contender in the AI landscape, they have yet to undergo independent verification. However, notable figures in the AI community have acknowledged Grok 3's advanced capabilities, suggesting it represents a significant leap forward in AI technology. xAI, founded in 2023, is actively seeking to raise $10 billion in funding to further its research and development efforts. This development occurs amidst a legal dispute between Musk and OpenAI, wherein Musk is challenging OpenAI's planned transition to a for-profit entity, highlighting the competitive and rapidly evolving nature of the AI industry.

In a related development, Dell Technologies Inc. is expected to provide lower earnings guidance for fiscal 2026, primarily due to unpredictability in the AI server market, especially delays related to Nvidia's Blackwell AI-chip platform. Despite this, Dell maintains a positive outlook, bolstered by significant AI-server deals, including a $5 billion contract with Elon Musk's xAI startup. This contract aims for rapid deployment by mid-2025, underscoring the increasing demand for advanced AI infrastructure. Analysts suggest that while near-term inconsistencies in AI-server revenue may occur, strong long-term growth is anticipated as shipments of advanced AI chips increase.

These developments highlight the dynamic and competitive nature of the AI industry, with companies like xAI pushing technological boundaries and firms like Dell adapting to meet the growing infrastructure needs. As AI continues to advance, collaborations and strategic investments are becoming increasingly crucial to support the computational demands of cutting-edge AI models. The interplay between AI developers and hardware providers exemplifies the interconnected ecosystem driving innovation in artificial intelligence.

- A. responding B. verifying C. disputing D. approving

Question 34: In paragraph 2, which of the following is NOT mentioned as a detail about Grok 3 or xAI?

- A. Grok 3's claims have not yet been independently verified.
B. xAI aims to raise $10 billion for research and development.
C. Elon Musk founded xAI in 2023 to compete with OpenAI.
D. AI experts recognize Grok 3's advanced capabilities.

Question 35: The word bolstered in paragraph 3 is OPPOSITE in meaning to _____.

- A. minimized B. weakened C. supported D. superior

Question 36: Which of the following best summarizes paragraph 3?

- A. Dell's earnings outlook for 2026 is uncertain due to AI server market fluctuations.
B. Dell secured a $5 billion AI-server contract with xAI, ensuring strong future growth.
C. Analysts expect Dell's AI-server revenue to face short-term challenges but grow long term.
D. Delays in Nvidia's AI chips have impacted Dell's guidance, but AI demand remains strong.

Question 37: Which of the following best paraphrases the underlined sentence in paragraph 4?

- A. The rapid progress of AI makes partnerships and financial support less important for managing processing demands.
B. With the advent of AI, working together and investing wisely are the most important in handling its growing computing needs.
C. Although technology is constant advancing in the modern age, the demand for computing power in AI is decreasing.
D. With AI becoming more advanced, companies must collaborate and invest to keep up with increasing computational demands.

Question 38: Which of the following is TRUE according to the passage?

- A. Grok 3 has already been verified as the most advanced AI model.
B. xAI is currently raising funds to expand its AI research and development.
C. OpenAI has transitioned into a for-profit entity without any challenges.
D. Dell Technologies has seen immediate revenue growth due to AI server demand.

Question 39: Which of the following can be inferred from the passage?

- A. AI companies can develop advanced models without relying on improvements in hardware.
B. Strong collaborations between AI developers and hardware providers are crucial for AI progress.
C. Dell is currently the sole provider of infrastructure needed to support AI advancements.
D. The rapid growth of the AI industry is slowing down due to competition and legal disputes.

Question 40: Which of the following best summarizes the passage?

- A. In order to remain competitive, Dell has secured a major AI-server deal, though it faces financial uncertainty due to delays in AI chip shipments.
B. Driven by advancements in AI technology, xAI has introduced Grok 3 and Deep Search, aiming to enhance user experience and outperform competitors.
C. Despite challenges such as market unpredictability and legal disputes, AI companies and hardware providers are driving innovation and competing for dominance.
D. Unless companies adapt to the evolving AI landscape, they may struggle to keep pace with industry leaders like xAI, which continues to push technological boundaries.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions.

In recent years, Vietnam has seen a significant number of university graduates, facing challenges in securing employment aligned with their fields of study. A report by the Ministry of Labour, Invalids and Social Affairs highlighted that annually, over 100,000 university graduates remain unemployed, with up to 60% accepting jobs unrelated to their majors. This trend underscores a growing mismatch between academic training and labor market demands, prompting many graduates to explore alternative career paths.

For instance, graduates with degrees in English have increasingly ventured into diverse sectors beyond traditional teaching roles. A study focusing on Vietnamese English-major graduates revealed that many have successfully transitioned into fields such as business, technology, and international relations. These individuals often leverage their language proficiency and critical thinking skills to adapt to various professional environments, highlighting the versatility of their academic background.

Additionally, the Vietnamese government has been proactive in addressing these employment challenges by promoting vocational training and international collaboration. Notably, partnerships with countries like Germany have opened avenues for graduates in sectors such as nursing. These programs offer vocational education combined with practical work experience, enabling participants to secure stable employment abroad. Such initiatives not only alleviate domestic employment pressures but also equip graduates with valuable skills applicable in global contexts.

Moreover, the rise of private and international educational institutions in Vietnam has expanded opportunities for pedagogical graduates. These institutions often seek educators with diverse skill sets, including proficiency in foreign languages and familiarity with international curricula. As a result, graduates are increasingly pursuing roles in bilingual schools, international programs, and educational consultancy services, thereby broadening their career prospects beyond conventional public school teaching positions.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions.

[I] In October 2024, a significant study published in the International Journal of Epidemiology raised concerns about the health implications of standing desks. [II] These desks have become increasingly popular in modern workplaces. [III] Researchers from the University of Sydney conducted an extensive analysis involving over 83,000 British adults, tracking their health data over a period of seven to eight years. [IV]

The findings revealed that merely standing for extended periods does not confer the anticipated benefits for heart health. In fact, the research indicated that standing for more than two hours daily was associated with an 11% increase in the likelihood of developing circulatory problems, such as varicose veins and deep vein thrombosis, for every additional 30 minutes spent standing. This challenges the common perception that standing desks are a straightforward solution to the health risks posed by prolonged sitting.

Dr. Matthew Ahmadi, the lead author of the study, emphasized that while reducing sedentary behavior is essential, simply substituting sitting with standing is insufficient. He stated, "The key takeaway is that standing for too long will not offset an otherwise sedentary lifestyle and could be risky for some people in terms of circulatory health." This underscores the necessity of incorporating regular physical activity into daily routines rather than relying solely on standing as an alternative to sitting.

The study also highlighted that prolonged sitting remains a significant concern, with each additional hour beyond ten hours daily increasing the risk of cardiovascular diseases by 26%. Professor Emmanuel Stamatakis, a co-author of the research, suggested practical measures to reduce these risks, such as taking regular breaks, participating in walking meetings, and using stairs instead of elevators. He noted, "For people who sit for long hours, incorporating small movements throughout the day can make a significant difference in overall health."

In conclusion, while standing desks offer an alternative to traditional seating arrangements, this research indicates that they are not a panacea for the health issues associated with sedentary lifestyles. A balanced approach that combines reduced sitting time with increased physical activity appears to be more effective. Employers and individuals should consider integrating movement and exercise into daily routines to address the multifaceted challenges of workplace health.
