SUMMER TIME

This week we speak to three people who have had very different summer holiday experiences. You don't need to have money to try any of these activities and 00. ___C___!

We started our very own English club!

Carla and Ricardo started their own English club. But isn't that a bit like school? 'No, not at all,' Carla laughs. 'We had a lot of friends who went to London and New York for summer school. That's a great idea, but a lot of us didn't have much money and so we decided to start our own summer school right here at home. 46. _____! Every day one of us brought in some English food. On rainy days we watched films in English and listened to English music and on sunny days we went to the beach, hung out together and chatted in English. It was really good fun and it was cheap too.' The best thing about the English club? '47. _____!'

I've always wanted to make films!

Sophie had always been mad about film making but she got fed up with working alone all the time. She wrote an advert which said that she was looking for people to make films with. She got a lot of answers and soon had her own small film crew of five teenagers. They wrote a short film script and really enjoyed going to different parts of the city to film scenes. 'I'm so glad I wrote that advert!' Sophie says now. '48. _____ and we made a short film. It's a horror movie which we filmed in an old house at night time! The people I met through the advert were such fun and when we weren't filming we just really enjoyed chilling out and watching films together.'

I organised a hiking group!

Florence loves walking and was looking forward to going for long walks in the beautiful countryside near her home. There was only one problem – 49. _____ She decided to get together with some friends and start a hiking group. 'It was amazing!' Florence says. 50. _____. We had picnics by waterfalls and sunbathed on rocks. Every day someone brought a cake from home and we always found a nice place to sit and eat. I had the best summer ever!'

II. Read the passage below and decide which option A, B, C or D best fits each space. (10.0 points)

In recent years, environmental issues have become increasingly important. One of the biggest challenges we face today is _____ (51) climate change. This phenomenon is largely caused by human activities, such as burning fossil fuels and deforestation. As a result, global temperatures are rising, leading to _____ (52) weather patterns and more frequent natural disasters.

Another significant issue is the _____ (53) of natural resources. Many resources, like fresh water and minerals, are being used at an unsustainable rate. This puts pressure on ecosystems and _____ (54) biodiversity. It is crucial for governments and organizations to work together to promote _____ (55) practices that reduce waste and conserve resources.

Individuals can also make a difference by adopting more _____ (56) lifestyles. For example, using public transportation, reducing energy consumption, and recycling are all effective ways to lessen our environmental impact. Education plays a key role in raising awareness about these issues and encouraging _____ (57) behavior.

However, there are also some _____(58) to making these changes. Often, there are economic costs associated with transitioning to greener technologies or practices. Additionally, there may be resistance from industries that benefit from the current systems. Nonetheless, it is essential to address these _____(59) in order to create a sustainable future for all.

Finally, it is important to remember that every small action counts. By working together and making conscious choices, we can contribute to a healthier _____(60) for future generations.

III. Read the following passage and choose the best answer to each question. (10.0 points)

Without the Nile River, the great civilization of ancient Egypt may never have existed. Until about nine thousand years ago, all of Egypt was under water. When the climate began to turn dry, tribes moved from North Africa to land near the river. Small villages appeared along the banks of the Nile. Each village had a chief who would battle other villages. Around 3300 BCE, these tribes came together to form the civilization of ancient Egypt.

One reason ancient Egypt was built around the Nile River was because its yearly flood made farming possible. The flood was so important that religious leaders would perform ceremonies that were believed to cause the river to rise and flood. The flood made the land very good for growing grains such as wheat and barley. Farmers began to plant these crops in November, right after the flood. Because of the Nile, they were usually able to grow a lot of crops. If the grain was not used, it would be stored for later use. Historians believe this is one reason that ancient Egypt became a powerful and wealthy nation.

The Nile also served as an important means of transportation. Ancient Egypt did not have the wheel, so there were no wagons or carts back then. However, ancient Egyptians learned to build boats so that when the Nile flooded they could use the river as a main road throughout Egypt. It is said that without the Nile, there would be no pyramids. This is because historians think that the huge stones were carried on the river by boat. This would explain why the pyramids sit close to the river on its west bank.
