VI. Read the passage. Do as request.

Bill Radford has a job in a small factory. He doesn't much like the work, but he enjoys the relationships with the other workers, and he gets on well with the boss.

His wife, Ann doesn't go to work. She stays at home and looks after the house. After getting their six-year-old daughter ready and driving her to school, she starts on the housework. She finds housework boring and doesn't like to stay at home all day. So she tries to get through the washing-up, the washing, the ironing, the shopping and so on as quickly as possible.

At weekends they try to spend some time outdoors. They often go walking in the country, or take their daughter on trips to places to zoo or the seaside.
