Today, more and more students are doing part-time jobs while they are still studying at secondary school. Having a job while at school can benefit secondary school students in several ways.

To begin with, students can gain and develop important skills that may be useful in their future careers. The real work environment can help students learn more new skills as well as improve existing ones such as communication, teamwork, or problem-solving skills. For example, if a student works as a waiter or waitress, he or she can learn how to greet and communicate with customers. Those who are equipped with various life skills can perform better in their future jobs.

In addition, having a part-time job can provide students with more experience and then boost their confidence. Students will become more confident if they have opportunities to work together with different groups of people. As we may know, a teaching assistant will help the teacher prepare and present the lesson or mark students' assignments. Students who apply for the post of a teaching assistant are required to meet and interact with the teachers, young pupils, or even parents at various age levels. This can develop their classroom experience as well as confidence.

Finally, those who have a part-time job can build more relationship for their careers in the future. The opportunities to meet in-person and talk to other people in society will help students create a strong connection with people who may be their employers, colleagues, or customers later in their life.

Read the following passage about the urban shift and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 40.

[I] The human population is always growing, and more people means more homes, more office buildings, and more roads. [II] At Habitat Earth, our main goal is to conserve nature for generations to come. [III] We are a charity organization that runs programs all across the USA to protect animals and their habitats from destruction. [IV] We currently have several campaigns to do this.

The first campaign focuses on stopping people from building things anywhere they like. For the past ten years, we have protested in endangered areas to help people become more aware of the damage that building projects are doing to their local environment and wildlife. This encourages local governments to pass laws to stop these projects. As long as we continue to do this, we can greatly reduce the damage to natural habitats.

The next campaign is about rescuing animals. Animals that lose their habitats to urban expansion often move into cities and cause problems for people and themselves. Our volunteers rescue these endangered animals and reintroduce them to their natural environments. As long as this work continues, these animals will not be hurt or killed.

Our final campaign is focused on teaching children about protecting the environment. Volunteers go to schools and youth centers and show children how important it is to maintain habitats. If people grow up understanding this message, they are more likely to build a better future.

We are always looking to more volunteers to help protect nature and the environment. If you are interested in helping us here at Habitat Earth, please go to www.habitalearth.com and sign up. You can also donate to support our work on the website.
