Read the following passage about global urbanisation and mark the letter A, b, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the option that best fits each of the numbered blanks from 18 to 22.

Global urbanisation (18)_____, and one of the main drivers of this growth has been rural migration. There are many push factors which force people away from rural life. For example, rural residents have fewer employment options (19)_____. What's more, rural jobs are mainly related to agriculture, so crop failure due to natural disasters can make it difficult to earn a good living. (20)_____. Urban areas have more industries, so people can easily get good jobs and achieve a higher standard of living. Cities also offer entertainment alternatives, such as theme parks and sporting and musical events, allowing urban citizens to access leisure activities easily.

(21)_____. First, deforestation occurs when city governments have forests cut down to build accommodation for new residents, which harms the environment and reduces air quality. As growing populations result in more deforestation and pollution, the air quality worsens, which can lead to health issues for residents. Second, due to population expansion, cities are struggling to offer adequate public facilities for urban people. As a result, some low-income people are unable to obtain the necessary affordable housing and end up living in slums, (22)_____.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions from 23 to 30.

Working as a store assistant can be a flexible and rewarding job, especially for students or those with other commitments. One of the main advantages of this job is the flexible hours. You can choose to work in the morning, afternoon, or even late in the evening. This flexibility is perfect if you have school, family responsibilities, or other activities during the day. It allows you to balance work with other important parts of your life.

The wage for a store assistant might not be very high when you first start. However, many stores offer a bonus system. A bonus is extra money that you can earn if you do your job well. For example, if you meet your sales targets or if the store has a successful month, you might receive a bonus. This bonus is a great motivation because it rewards your hard work and dedication. Knowing that you can earn a little extra money by putting in effort makes the job more rewarding.

On the other hand, some parts of the job can be repetitive. You might have to do the same tasks every day, like stocking shelves, helping customers, or cleaning the store. At first, this might seem a bit boring, but repetition has its benefits. The more you do a task, the better and faster you become at it. Soon, you'll find that you can complete your tasks with ease, which can make the workday go by quickly. Plus, this routine can give you a sense of comfort because you know what to expect each day.

In addition to the flexible hours and the chance to earn a bonus, working as a store assistant can also teach you valuable skills. You learn how to interact with different kinds of people, handle money, and manage your time effectively. These skills are useful in many other jobs and can help you in the future.
