LIFELONG LEARNING

Let children learn to judge their own work. A child learning to talk does not learn by being corrected all the time. If corrected too much, he will stop talking. He notices a thousand times a day the difference between the language he uses and the language those around him use. Bit by bit, he makes the necessary changes to make his language like other people's. In the same way, children learn all the other things they learn to do without being taught - to talk, run, climb, whistle, ride a bicycle - compare their own performances with those of more skilled people, and slowly make the needed changes.

But in school we never give a child a chance to find out his mistakes for himself, let alone correct them. We do it all for him. We act as if we thought that he would never notice a mistake unless it was pointed out to him, or correct it unless he was made to. Soon he becomes dependent on the teacher. Let him do it himself. Let him work out, with the help of other children if he wants it, what this word says, what the answer is to that problem, whether this is a good way of saying or doing this or not.

If it is a matter of right answers, as it may be in mathematics or science, give him the answer book. Let him correct his own papers. Why should we, teachers, waste time on such routine work? Our job should be to help the child when he tells us that he can't find the way to get the right answer. Let's end all this nonsense of grades, exams, and marks. Let US throw them all out, and let the children learn what all educated persons must someday learn, how to measure their own understanding, how to know what they know or do not know.

58. What is the first paragraph mainly about?

- A. Adults' mistakes in teaching children. B. The best way for children to learn.
C. Teachers' roles in helping children self-study. D. How children learn to talk.

59. The word "Bit by bit" in paragraph 1 is closest in meaning to _____.

- A. Day to day B. Day after day C. Little by little D. More and more

60. The word "it" in paragraph 2 refers to _____

- A. chance B. mistake C. problem D. word

61. The author doesn't think that teachers should _____.

- A. give children correct answers
B. allow children to do their own work
C. encourage children to copy from one another
D. point out children's mistakes to them

62. It can be inferred from the passage that _____.

- A. exams, grades and marks should be abolished because children's progress should only be estimated by themselves
B. teachers only give children support in Maths lessons
C. talking and running are two basic skills which children learn to do without being taught
D. the best way for children to learn effectively is from their surrounding environment

Section 3: Read the text below and think of the word which best fits each space. Use only ONE word in each space. Write your answers in the Answer Sheets.

BEING INDEPENDENT

Many young people strive to be independent. That means you are able to take care of (63) _____, and you don't have to rely on anyone else. However, to live independently, you need a number of life skills in (64) _____ not to depend on your parents and older brothers or sisters. One of the most important skills is time (65) _____ which can help you build your confidence and self-esteem. With good time management skills, you can perform your daily tasks, including your responsibilities at school and at home with pleasing results. (66) _____, you will not feel stressed when exam dates are approaching. These skills can also help you act more independently and responsibly, get better grades at school and have more time for your family and friends.

Developing time-management skills is not as challenging as you may think. Firstly, make a plan for things you need to do, including appointments and deadlines. Using a diary or apps on mobile devices will remind you (67) _____ what you need to accomplish and when you need to accomplish it. Secondly, (68) _____ your activities. You need to decide which tasks are the most urgent and important and then, concentrate on these first. This way, you may not be at a (69) _____ to deal with too much work at the same time. Thirdly, develop routines because routines, when established, take less time for you to do your tasks. Time management skills are not hard to develop; once you master them, you will find out that they are great keys to (70) _____ and you can become independent.

Section 4: You are going to read an article about a young woman who is a mountaineer talking about her experience. Six sentences have been removed from the article, including an example. Choose from the sentences A-G the one which fits each gap (1-5). There is one extra sentence which you do not need to use. Write your answers in the Answer Sheets. (0) has been done as an example.

| A. We set about making our own preparations, burying supplies at regular intervals for later use. B. This turned out to be the most challenging expedition I had done so far. C. There's no doubt that mountaineering is extremely challenging, but that's one of the reasons why I like it so much. D. After this, things began to get quite a bit harder. E. During the Everest expedition, I worked out that I had taken 68 flights along my journey to reach the seven summits. F. But it's particularly thanks to my father that I started tackling serious peaks at such a young age. G. It was a really unpleasant journey. |

ON TOP OF THE WORLD.

I'm lucky enough to have come from a family of mountaineers, so I have been climbing for as long as I can remember, really. (0) _____. When I was twelve years old, we travelled together to Alaska to climb Mount Denali, which at 6,194 metres is the highest peak in North America.

The following year, I joined a youth expedition to Africa to climb Mount Kilimanjaro. (71) _____ I went on to climb tough peaks in Australia, Argentina and Russia, each time with a different team. Sometimes the difficulty was in getting a visa to enter a particular country, most times it was in finding sponsors willing to help fund my trip.

In December of the year I turned 19, I headed out to Mount Vinson in the Antarctic. (72) _____. First there was the long, arduous journey down to the 'frozen continent'. We took a flight to Southern Chile and then caught a cargo plane on to the Antarctic, with no heating, real seats or windows. (73) _____. Then during the actual climb my hands froze and I was in a lot of pain. Still, it was an indescribable experience. The colours of the ice, air and sky there are so pure without the pollution we have got so used to everywhere else.

By this time, I had gained a lot of experience and felt I was ready for 'the big one', Mount Everest. Everest stands at 8,848 metres high and is not only the highest mountain on Earth but possibly the most unforgiving, too. When we arrived at the base camp, which itself stands at around 5,600 metres, around one hundred other climbers were there preparing for their shot at the mountain, too. (74) _____.

Since returning from Everest I've been giving a series of talks and presentations on my expeditions. I hope more than anything that they will inspire other young people to follow their dreams. (75) _____. But I never doubted what I was doing. I truly believed that one day I was going to stand on the top of the world!
