THE BIOSPHERE

The biosphere, surrounding all living things and their environments, is not a distinct sphere but integrates parts of the lithosphere, hydrosphere, and atmosphere. Life exists in oceans, continents, and atmosphere, with examples including birds, insects, and airborne bacteria. Bacteria have even been found in rock 1.7 miles underground.

The biosphere significantly impacts Earth's chemistry and geologic processes. It is believed to have buried an ancient carbon dioxide atmosphere, replacing some with oxygen, and produced vast coal and oil deposits. It also regulates the planet's temperature.

Photosynthesis, converting sunlight, water, carbon dioxide, and minerals into oxygen and sugars, forms the basis of most of the biosphere. Animals consume plants and microorganisms, storing energy. Carnivores further concentrate energy, while scavengers feed on dead plants and animals. After death, these creatures become part of the lithosphere, with some gases released into the atmosphere or hydrosphere.

Scientists have discovered ecosystems independent of sunlight, such as hydrothermal vent communities in the deep ocean. These vents emit hot water and sulfur dioxide gas, which chemoautotrophs use to produce food. Other creatures, like tube worms, store bacteria in their bodies and consume their energy. Deep underground rocks may contain bacteria that use hydrogen from water broken down by nuclear radiation. Biologists have recently proposed a new kingdom called Archaea for microorganisms inhabiting extreme environments, such as very hot or salty conditions. These organisms, called archaeans, have led scientists to speculate that life could exist beneath Mars' surface or in Jupiter's moon Europa's deep, ice-covered oceans.

WHY BE A SCREENAGER?

Jo, 14

I was on social media 24/7 but when my smartphone broke, I didn't replace it. I've never felt better but nearly all people my age just don't understand my decision. If their phone doesn't beep every two seconds, they get worried. If they're bored, they pick up their mobile. It's how they communicate, spend free time and have fun. But how much fun is staring at a screen and waiting for the next message?

I don't think I'm missing out on a social life. The people I want to hang out with are all close by. When someone wants to see me, they just knock on the door. Or we arrange to meet up during the school day. And my life is so full I don't have time to sit around messaging people. I sing and do street dance, and I also design my own clothes. I get everything I need from the internet on my laptop. Living without a smartphone isn't like being on another planet. In fact, it makes me more independent and creative. Why not give it a go?

Craig, 15

A few months ago, I lost my smartphone and never found it. The first few days were awful. I really felt I was missing out on everything but now I don't think about social media much. Who cares how many likes a selfie gets or which songs everyone is listening to? I like to make up my own mind and not think the same as everyone else. The teens who are on social media are the same people I see at school or at the youth club anyway. I don't need apps like Snapchat to plan a game of football or to decide to download a film.

To me, a phone should be a way of planning entertainment, not the entertainment itself. I spend my free time skateboarding, playing my guitar and writing songs. I don't need a mobile for any of that! If I need a phone in the future, of course, I'll get one. But for now, I find social media a bit dull. Going out with my mates is just more personal to me and more fun. Try it. If you switch off your phone today, you won't lose all your friends tomorrow, honest.

Question 31. What is the main idea of the passage?

- A. Social media is the best way to communicate.
- B. Two teenagers explain why they don't use smartphones.
- C. Smartphones are necessary for entertainment.
- D. Losing a smartphone makes life harder.

- A. amazing
- B. terrible

- A. She prefers talking to friends online.
- B. She doesn't like making new friends.
- C. She plays online games to connect with people.
- D. Her friends visit her in person or meet her at school.

Question 34. How does Craig feel about social media now?

- A. He thinks it is boring.
- B. He still checks it every day.
- C. He wants to buy a new phone soon.
- D. He finds it exciting and necessary.

Question 35. Which of the following statements is NOT true according to the passage?

- A. Jo thinks her life is more creative without a smartphone.
- B. Both Jo and Craig believe they don't need social media to have fun.
- C. Craig enjoys activities like skateboarding and playing the guitar.
- D. Craig still misses his smartphone every day.

Question 36. The word "dull" in Craig's paragraph is opposite in meaning to:

- A. boring

Australia is a country comprising the mainland of the Australian continent, the island of Tasmania and numerous smaller islands. It is the world's sixth-largest country by total area. Australia's capital is Canberra, and its largest urban area is Sydney.

For about 50000 years before the first British settlement in the late 18th century, Australia was inhabited by indigenous Australians, who spoke languages classifiable into roughly 250 groups. After the European discovery of the continent by Dutch explorers in 1606, Australia's eastern half was claimed by Great Britain in 1770 and initially settled through penal transportation to the colony of New South Wales from 26 January 1788. The population grew steadily in subsequent decades, and by the 1850s most of the continent had been explored and an additional five self-governing crown colonies established. On 1 January 1901, the six colonies federated, forming the Commonwealth of Australia. Australia has since maintained a stable liberal democratic political system. The population of 24 million is highly urbanized and heavily concentrated on the eastern seaboard.
